Analytics

Yield Strategy

Imagine Rob having $1,000 USDC to start with. Therefore, he borrows 1,000 USDC from Bob. Now Rob has $2,000 and buys wheat seeds for farming.

Rob pays Bob 10% interest for the $1,000 he borrowed from him. But Rob earns an income from $2,000, and this is farming with 2x leverage.

Investment returns are not guaranteed. When Rob offered to borrow $1,000 USDC from Bob, he understood the risk. If he does not lend Rob $1,000 USDC, his money is safe.

If he lends Rob $1,000 USDC, he earns 10% ($100 USDC) interest every year. But if Rob fails to plant wheat or if the price of wheat drops, he might not be able to repay either the principal or interest.
